Location

Holy Trinity Lutheran Church 350 E. Madison Street, Lombard, IL

Lombard is in the western suburbs of Chicago, approximately 30 minutes by car from O'Hare and Midway airports. A map and information for area hotels will be sent with confirmation of registration.

Tuition

Tuition for the series is $1,100 for registrations received prior to September 18, 2017, and $1,200 if received later. To register, return the registration form with full payment. Cancellations are subject to a non-refundable administration fee of $100, if we receive notification prior to September 29, 2017, or half of the registration fee, if notified prior to October 9, 2017. Afterward there will be no refunds or credit for missed sessions, since family of origin group leaders will have already been hired.

Faculty

Richard Blackburn is Executive Director of the Lombard Mennonite Peace Center. He has broad experience as a trainer, mediator, and consultant with conflicted churches and their leaders. The congregational mediation model he developed represents a transformational approach, placed within the context of Bowen family systems theory. For several years, he attended Edwin Friedman's Post Graduate Clergy Seminar in Family Emotional Process in Bethesda, MD. Richard also participated in the Postgraduate Program in Bowen Family Systems Theory and Its Applications at the Bowen Center for the Study of the Family in Washington, D.C.

Bill Blank is Associate Director of the Lombard Mennonite Peace Center. As an ordained minister in the Mennonite Church, he has served as a pastor and interim pastor for a number of years. He has participated in the Postgraduate Program in Bowen Family Systems Theory and Its Applications at the Bowen Center for the Study of the Family in Washington, D.C. He has experience as a mediator, trainer, and church consultant as well as providing coaching for pastors and church leaders from a Bowen family systems theory perspective.

Prerequisites

Participants in the Advanced Clergy Clinic will have completed LMPC's basic Clergy Clinic in Family Emotional Process, attended the Advanced Clergy Clinic in a previous year, or been accepted into the program on the basis of documented background in Bowen family systems theory.

Those who have not previously attended either LMPC's basic Clergy Clinic in Family Emotional Process or the Advanced Clergy Clinic may complete and submit an application form to LMPC; it will provide a vehicle for documenting one's background in Bowen family systems theory. Contact LMPC for an application form.

Guest Presenters

October 16, 2017 — Jim Herrington “Staying Calm When Leadership Takes You Off the Map”

Jim Herrington, D.Min., has been a pastor for 45 years and has served as a denominational executive and a pastor to pastors since 1989. He is the co-author of The Leader's Journey: Accepting the Call to Personal and Congregational Transformation, a book that integrates Bowen theory and theological insights. In 2007 he co-founded Faithwalking, a spiritual formation ministry that equips people and congregations to live missionally.

February 5, 2018 — Emlyn Ott “Defining Self and Leading Faith Communities in an Age of Yard Sales”

Emlyn A. Ott, D.Min., is on the faculty of Trinity Lutheran Seminary, Columbus, OH and serves as Executive Director of Healthy Congregations, Inc. She has served as a parish pastor, campus pastor, pastoral counselor, seminary administrator and consultant. Intrigued by the level of reactivity, massive change and passivity at national, judicatory and local contexts, she continues to make use of Bowen theory and adaptive change thinking.

April 9, 2018 — Michael Kerr “Advances in Bowen Theory”

Michael E. Kerr, M.D., is a family psychiatrist. He trained under and worked with Murray Bowen for more than 20 years. He succeeded Dr. Bowen as Director of the Bowen Center for the Study of the Family in 1990, and has been Emeritus Director of the Bowen Center since 2011. He is co-author with Dr. Bowen of Family Evaluation (1988), and is writing a second book, Bowen Theory: Defining a Self in Context.

Family Emotional Process

Since the publication of Generation to Generation: Family Process in Church and Synagogue, by Dr. Edwin Friedman, pastors and other clergy have recognized the importance of understanding Bowen family systems theory as it relates to congregational systems.

Dr. Murray Bowen understood families as emotional systems impacted by two key factors: the level of anxiety within the system and the level of differentiation of family members. As a student of Bowen, Dr. Edwin Friedman saw the relevance of Bowen's ideas for religious congregations and their leaders.

With today's rising level of anxiety in society and its resulting impact on families, there is little doubt that such anxiety will impact the church with increasing intensity in the years ahead. The resulting elevation of pressures within congregations and the increasing demands which that places on clergy make it imperative that leaders step back occasionally from the fray to assess their own capacity for managing themselves in a calmer, more differentiated way.

The Advanced Clergy Clinic in Family Emotional Process is designed to enhance the ability of participants to function as self-differentiated leaders within their own ministry setting. It will provide a safe forum for processing challenging situations in one's ministry, while also facilitating reflection on a way of thinking about the human condition which has implications for all aspects of life.

Session Format

The Advanced Clergy Clinic meets three times per year for three successive days each session, providing nine full days of reflection on the concepts of family emotional process. The format follows the basic themes articulated in Edwin Friedman's Generation to Generation, with reflection on the minister's three interlocking families: the minister's own personal family, the parishioner family, and the congregation as a family.

The first day of each session will be largely didactic, including input from a guest presenter who is a significant leader in the field of Bowen theory and related areas. The morning of the second and third days will also be didactic, with presentations from the clinic faculty as well as videotape input from Murray Bowen, Edwin Friedman, and others.

The afternoons of the second and third days will be clinical in format. On Tuesday afternoon of each session participants will divide into small groups to explore their own family of origin issues under the guidance of an experienced family systems practitioner. The final afternoon of each session will be given to the presentation of case studies by participants from their own ministry system, followed by opportunity for feedback, discussion, and consultation.

The program has been designed around several three day visits, rather than a one-time intensive effort, because we have found that family systems thinking cannot be learned simply by attending a workshop or reading a book. It is necessary to alternate the learning experience with personal efforts to integrate family systems thinking into one's own functioning. Given such an effort over an extended period of time, it is possible to raise one's functional level of differentiation and, thereby, positively impact one's leadership capabilities in all areas of ministry.

Who Will Benefit
